COMMUNITY CAMPOUT

2015 Program Manual

The California Roundtable on Recreation, Parks and Tourism a consortium of State, federal, local, academic institutions, private and non-profit organizations was founded in 1998 to encourage cooperation between public and private entities involved in outdoor recreation, public lands and tourism in California.

With recent concerns about youth detachment from outdoor activities, lack of physical exercise and increased health risks, the California Roundtable on Recreation, Parks and Tourism adopted the California Children's Outdoor Bill of Rights for the purpose of recommending a fundamental list of experiences that every child in California would benefit from experiencing, before entering high school.

Every Child Should Have the Opportunity to:

- ✓ Play in a safe place
- ✓ Explore nature
- ✓ Learn to swim
- ✓ Go fishing
- ✓ Follow a trail
- ✓ Camp under the stars
- ✓ Ride a bike
- ✓ Go boating
- ✓ Connect with the past
- ✓ Plant a seed

Every Kid's Life List

MISSION

To encourage California's children to participate in outdoor recreational activities and discover their heritage.

REASON

Numerous studies have shown that children who participate in outdoor recreational activities are healthier, do better in school, have better social skills and self-image, and lead more fulfilled lives.

OBJECTIVE

That every child in California should, by the end of their 14th year, have the opportunity to experience each of the activities listed within the California Children's Outdoor Bill of Rights.

Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger issued a proclamation July 6, 2007 recognizing the Children's Outdoor Bill of Rights.

The California Children's Outdoor Bill or Rights, an initiative of the California Roundtable on Recreation, Parks and Tourism, is intended for adoption by local California Parks and Recreation Agencies, and as a model for national dissemination.

For more information on the California Roundtable on Recreation, Parks and Tourism, and a survey of published research that provides substantiation of the benefits of the above listed activities go to: www.calroundtable.org.

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Cameron Park Community Services District (Campout Program Manual). This manual has been made possible through grant funding by PG&E. The purpose is to provide an easy "How to Guide," to set up a Campout of your own.

GOAL

Introduce children and families to an outdoor adventure, while "camping under the stars in your local park."

THE EXPERIENCE

The Community Campout is a community based event which invites families to participate in an evening of hassle-free camping. Many families and children have never experienced the joy of camping together; therefore the goal of the Community Campout event is to allow families the opportunity to spend a night underneath the stars and interact with fellow neighbors. The Community Campout becomes a perfect way for families to enjoy their first camping outing. Families are provided with arts and craft activities, entertainment, BBQ Dinner service, Campinental Breakfast, and more during the Campout experience. The Community Campout gives families the camping reality without having to do all of the work. Campers are able to set-up camp and let the staff take over from there. Staff offer a number of structured, interactive, and educational activities for participants. These activities are not required, but help facilitate a positive camping experience. The Cameron Park Community Services District adopted the California Children's Outdoor Bill of Rights highlighting 10 things that every child, by the completion of their 14th year, have the opportunity to experience. The Community Campout allows children and families to share some of these experiences together. This manual will allow you an outline for hosting a Community Campout in your district.

GETTING STARTED

Now that you are on the road to hosting your very own Community Campout there are a number of factors to take into consideration before moving forward. Most importantly, what is the vision of the Community Campout? What is it that you want the participants to walk away with? Once these questions are answered it is time to move forward.

Facility – Having a facility that is able to accommodate a large number of participants while offering the outdoor experience is crucial to a successful Campout.

- Can the facility accommodate a large number of participants, fire permits, shade, noise, activities, nature, cooking, and more?

Cost – Creating a price point that makes the Campout affordable to families who participate, while also allowing the district to cover costs and even make a profit is very important.

- Research other Community Campouts for pricing and contact the event coordinators for information on how the pricing has worked. Some districts that host Community Campouts include Cameron Park Community Services District, Sunrise Parks and Recreation District, and Chico Area Recreation District.
- Determine what foods will be served (Hamburgers, Hot Dogs, Fruit, Salad, etc.)

Dates and Times – Dates and time may vary depending upon other special events within the district or even surrounding districts. Week-ends tend to lead to higher participation, however each district is different. Figure out what works best.

- We have offered this particular event on Friday night to Saturday morning, but have recently moved to Saturday afternoon to Sunday morning and participation has increased. Saturday has made it easier on staff to account for last minute adjustments.

Registration – Pre-registration is required and allows for an approximate estimate of participants. This is critical to account for how much food, supplies, and staff are needed.

- Set a cut off time and date for registration as you will need to purchase food and supplies for your participants.
- Create a way to register online, in-person, or via telephone and advertise them.

Marketing – Create Flyers, Posters, and Banners to place in businesses and on busy intersections to inform the community about the new event.

- Create a "Survival Guide" that outlines the Campout and highlights items that are prohibited at the campout. This can be given to participants once they register.

Staffing – This can be a very enjoyable event for staff to work if the organization and activities are engaging.

- There will need to be staff or volunteers available for check-in, activities, food preparation, food cooking, food serving, clean-up, campfire, overnight, morning food preparation, morning cooking, morning serving, and morning clean-up.
- Yes, it sounds like that is a lot of staff, however staff can be assigned to various posts and can all come together to help serve food. Volunteers are also very critical to the success of the event. The morning breakfast shift is usually the most difficult to staff. Designate a staff for the overnight shift.

FOOD PREPARATION & SHOPPING

Once you have determined what is on the menu for Dinner and Breakfast, it's time to go shopping. If you received a gift card or have a sponsor willing to donate all of the food, try utilizing those relationships first, in order to reduce costs.

Shopping List – Once you have an estimate of how many participants will be attending the Community Campout, the next task is creating a shopping list. The shopping list should include a full list of food and supplies needed for dinner and breakfast, along with how many people you are serving. Be sure to look at the serving size label on the package and purchase accordingly. Remember that you will need paper plates, napkins, cutlery, cups, etc. for both food services. Be sure there is ample space to store frozen and refrigerated foods.

Preparation - Much of the food preparation can be completed prior to the beginning of the Campout on the day of the event. Make a plan for staff to arrive early to cut and prepare fruits, vegetables, salads, and whatever else that will need to be prepared ahead of time.

- Visit your local goodwill or donation store and ask for a donation of wire hangers, use wire cutters to cut off the top and then straighten and you have S'mores sticks.
- Pre-package S'mores in zip-loc baggies, and store in a cool dry place (See S'mores in Event Section for more details)

Cooking – This is one of the most important parts of the Community Campout. People arrive expecting to be fed a glorious meal and a glorious meal you will deliver! Cooking takes time and coordination, be sure to give yourself plenty of time to cook, as you don't want people waiting around and you don't want to cut into other activities.

- Generally, dinner is served around 6:00pm-6:30pm and takes about an hour or so to prepare depending on the amount of food and number of helpers.
- Utilize sternos, hot plates, and aluminum containers to store and serve food. This makes clean-up and refilling items simple and easy.

Maintenance – The maintenance staff is critical to the overall experience and appearance of the campout.

- Make sure security is informed about people being in the park overnight.
- Sprinklers need to be turned off!
- Park needs to be cleaned.
- Empty trash cans and make sure extra trash bags, toilet paper, and paper towels are accessible.
- Build a fire ring and stock wood and kindling.

Partnerships/Sponsorships – Find businesses and organizations that would be willing to donate gift cards and food for the Campout. Look into grant opportunities that can help supplement and promote the activity.

- Scholarships for families and reaching out to non-profits could be ideal in securing grant funds and in turn will help participation.
- Look into having non-profits or service oriented community groups come in to cook and serve food or to help unload vehicles.

Activities/Entertainment –

Having a variety of activities for people to participate in will allow the Campout to run smoothly and allow participants to interact with each other in a fun setting.

- Fill time breaks between Check-In and Entertainment, Entertainment and Dinner, and Dinner and S'mores with a few activities. Focus on a handful of cooperative activities and push those, as the goal is to get the different families to interact with one another.

- Seek out entertainers or storytellers that can sing songs and tell stories around the campfire. The more interactive and engaging the better; as kids and parents love the interaction.
- Offer swimming as a bonus to the campout experience. Some families will choose to do that depending on the weather and other activities (if applicable).
- Encourage participation, but don't force it, you'll be surprised at how many people like the ability to choose what they want to do.
- Create a registration packet that can be sent out to participants the week of the event that includes; a map of the camping area, "Survival Guide," Schedule of Activities or Itinerary, and check-in information.
- Create an event schedule that is kept by people working the event that details staff roles and responsibilities and a timeline of activities (set-up, arrival, take-down, etc.)

Emergency Plan and First Aid – As with all special events there will need to be an emergency plan in case something may go wrong or occur during the event.

- Meet with your local fire and police departments to come up with a strategy and comprehensive plan in case of an emergency.
- Set-Up and staff a first-aid station that can serve as a centralized location for lost and found, missing child, and any other type of non-emergency medical care.

EVENT PROCEDURES

Check-In – Designate an appropriate and visible area where people can check-in.

- Have families sign-in and indicate how many participants are with them. Have them sign a waiver as well for photo releases as there should be someone taking pictures throughout the event.
- The check-in location should be able to indicate where camp sites can be set up, where to park, and check for prohibited items.
- Families should be given wristbands or something to indicate that they are a part of the group (I give them wristbands and told them that it is their ticket to dinner and breakfast, this also helps me keep track of the group).

Camping Area – Make sure the camping area is clearly designated as people will tend to set-up away from everything which makes it difficult to communicate when activities are beginning.

Itinerary – Have a poster(s) or banner(s) hung around the facility with the schedule of activities or itinerary displayed with the location of each activity so if people miss the announcement they are reminded of the times.

- Throughout the activity the schedule may change as things come up. Dinner may be early or late, an activity may be going longer than expected, or whatever the case may be. Just use the itinerary as an outline as many of the participants like to just flow into the next activity rather than have it abruptly end to begin another.

Dinner – Maintaining communication and organization during dinner will allow for a very smooth dinner service.

- Assign staff jobs for service – assign a station and have the staff serve each of the participants as they come through the line.
- Create a layout that creates spaces between stations that allows for the line to move continuously and not abruptly stop at any given station.

- Establish how many servings people get (i.e. 1 hamburger or hot dog or 1 of each, etc.)
- Have a staff member available as a runner to refill containers as necessary.
- Have a communal eating area where participants can eat their food and interact with each other.
- Allow staff to eat once everyone has been served, if there are leftovers make an announcement that people may get seconds on a first come, first served basis.

- As dinner concludes and flows into the next activity have staff assist with clean-up of serving area and store any leftovers as needed.

S'mores – A highlight of every campout!

- Pre-package S'mores items in a Ziploc baggy and store in a cool place.
- Package includes (2) Graham Cracker Squares, (1) large Marshmallow, and (2) small rectangle squares of a Hershey's chocolate bar.
- Get a donation of wire hangers from a local thrift or goodwill store, cut and straighten wire hangers to create a marshmallow holder, or purchase s'mores sticks.
- Have staff announce S'mores and have participants line up and hand out (1) baggie and (1) wire or stick.
- Once everyone has had the opportunity for S'mores, if you have leftovers, hand them out on a first come first serve basis.
- When participants have finished, have a designated area for used materials and trash.

Evening Activity – A little something to cap off the night (optional).

- Depending on staffing and availability, there can be an activity following S'mores.
- Star gazing is an excellent activity to host during the night hours as the stars are plentiful. Talk to local astronomers and see if they can come out with telescopes or even come and point out constellations and discuss the planets and stars.

Lights Out – Once S'mores and evening activities have concluded it is now time to announce lights out and have families return to their respective campsites and turn in for the night.

- Depending on how morning breakfast is set-up (i.e. an outside organization coming in and doing the work) this is a good time to do some morning breakfast preparations.
- Staff can pre-mix large quantities of pancake batter and store in the refrigerator overnight, so that it is ready for the morning.
- Once staff has finished preparations, take a walk around the camping facility to make sure everything is in order, put the fire out, then head to bed for the night.

Morning Breakfast and Set-Up – Now that we have made it through the night, it is time to get breakfast going.

- Talk to local businesses about donating and picking up coffee in the morning
- If coffee is being delivered make sure it is there no later than 7:00am. Make sure there is plenty of creamer, sugar, cups, and stir sticks.
- Boil a large pot of water and provide instant hot chocolate packets for a nice morning treat for the kids.
- While people are enjoying the morning coffee and hot chocolate, begin cooking breakfast.
- If a grill and a griddle are available cooking time can be decreased as someone can be doing pancakes and the other doing sausage patties.
- Use large tin containers and foil to store cooked sausages and pancakes.
- Set-up breakfast service the same as dinner, create an even flow of traffic in order to get people through the line quickly.
- Provide Pancakes, Sausage Patties, Fruit, and Juice for breakfast. Oatmeal packets may also be another option.
- Make sure staff knows the proper amount to serve each person, (i.e. 3 pancakes, 2 sausage patties, and a couple pieces of fruit), in order to make quantities last.
- If there are leftovers, once participants and staff have eaten, invite participants for seconds on a first come, first served basis.

Take Down and Clean-Up – Once breakfast has concluded it is now time to conclude the community campout event.

- Walk around during and after breakfast and pass out community campout surveys and pens for each family to fill out, designate a location where surveys can be turned in. Provide a manila folder or envelope for completed surveys.
- These surveys should include questions about the event experience as well as how it can be better.
- Announce when camping areas need to be free of tents, trash, and other items and thank participants for a great time.
- Be sure to walk around and speak to each family regarding their overall experience and thank them for participating.
- 11:00am, location should be clear of tents, people, and trash.

What Next? – After a successful event, what do you do next?

- Take some time after the event and have staff and participating organizations write down notes regarding their overall experience, what they felt went well, and what they felt needed improvement.
- Take participant evaluations and create a spreadsheet that can measure the overall experiences (easily done using a Likert scale).
- Set a wrap up meeting to go over the good, the bad, and to discuss potential areas for improvement.
- Start planning for next year!

CONCLUSION

The community campout, with proper planning, marketing, and time, can become a staple community event. The interaction between community members and your agency will be beneficial to all parties. The event allows staff members to interact with the public on a professional and personal basis, if done right. The campout is a great event to learn more about people in your community and allows for staff to be flexible and creative with activities. The event promotes a stress free environment and even allows staff to enjoy themselves. Our event continues to grow each year as word gets out and people talk about it year round. It is with great pleasure and dedication that this manual has been created to create an outline for your agency to offer an amazing community event and experience.
